

If people vote yes in September then Scotland will become an independent country. There will be no going back and as I've made clear this is a decision that is squarely and solely for those in Scotland to make. While only 4 million people can vote in this referendum, all 63 million of us are profoundly affected. There are 63 million of us who could wake up on September the 19th in a different country with a different future ahead of it. The central part of my economic argument for the UK is not about what we'd lose if we pulled apart but about what we could gain in this world if we stay together. This government had set out a long-term economic plan for Britain getting behind enterprise, dealing with our debts, a plan to give the people of this country peace of mind and security for the future. And it's not just a plan, it is a vision; the United Kingdom as the big European success story of this century. And we must do whatever it takes so to everyone in England, Wales and Northern Ireland, everyone like me who cares about the United Kingdom, I want to say this: you don't have a vote but you do have a voice. So get on the phone, get together, email, tweet, speak, let the message ring out from Manchester to Motherwell, from Pembrokeshire to Perth, from Belfast to Bute, from us to the people of Scotland. Let the message be this: we want you to stay.
