We all have our favorite persons, people we respect, admire, and love from the bottom of our heart. While some of them are friends and family members we see almost every day, a few of them are renowned sportsmen or famous 'silver screen stars' we have never met. Interestingly, I have a list of my favorite personalities from different areas whom I follow on social networking platforms and I admire them for their talents, skills, contributions, philanthropic activities, and success stories.

One such famous person I greatly admire is Lionel Messi, one of the greatest footballers of all time. He is a 34-year-old well-respected sportsman I have been following in the news and on Twitter for more than eight years. I hardly ever miss a football match in which he plays. He is a wonder boy of football and the favorite sportsman of millions of football fans.

Messi is an Argentine professional footballer who plays as a "forward". He has won five Ballon d'Or awards, two FIFA Club World Cup golden balls, a record of five European Golden Shoes, nine La Liga titles, four UEFA Champions League titles, six Copas del Rey and many more. Both a prolific goalscorer and a creative playmaker, Messi holds many other enviable records in the world of professional football.

Messi has earned my deep admiration primarily for his amiable personality, and formidable skills. Throughout his career, he has been involved in charities supporting vulnerable children, a commitment that stems in part from the medical difficulties he faced in his childhood. Since 2004, he has devoted his time and finances to the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF). One of the highest-paid sportsmen of all time, he is a legend in football history and deserves our respect and admiration. I admire him more than any other football player I know or have ever known.
