Duration of Wear:

As for the duration of wear, ceramic aligners stay on for approximately the same time as the regular metal variety, whilst making the process much more pleasant and easy.

Comfort:

Many patients who have chosen the ceramic road have been pleasantly surprised by how comfortable they feel. Compared to metal braces, this style is a lot more gentle on the gums and does not irritate the inner mouth area. This is especially beneficial for those who are prone to lip and mouth problems or are sensitive around the area.

Cost-friendly:

Costs associated are comparable to the costs of conventional metal braces. As they are far more versatile and provide a more natural look, a greater number of patients are choosing this newer alternative, at no additional cost.

The cost of ceramic braces from the time you receive them on to the time they're eliminated can cost about $4,000 to $8,000.

Limitations:

While ceramics are no doubt an amazing breakthrough that has helped thousands of happy patients correct their smiles, they are not for everyone. Those who are regular smokers, consume lots of black coffee, or eat a lot of colored food such as berries and soups might not be suitable candidates. Ceramic can be prone to staining and the consumption of colored substances can lead to the discoloration of the bands that hold the brackets together. In such instances, other orthodontic treatments may be a better idea.
