

MAKE IT PARTY EPIC WITH BUDGET

PARTY IDEAS

Throwing a party is very exciting. But doing it on a budget, not so much. We all have our issues when it comes to party planning. Having to limit the amount of money you spent on it is one of the worst issues among them. If you were unable to save up some money for the event you wanted to plan, don't bum out so easily. You can still save your party. You don't have to necessarily spend huge amounts of bucks to make a party great. It can be simply, inexpensive but way more fun than the very high standard ones. So how can you actually throw such a party and be a great host? We might have some tricks on our sleeve to help you out.

Invitation

This is a very unnecessary expense many people tend to do. Printing out invitations can be a little too extra. Save that extra cash for the real fun. Besides, the card will be thrown away after reading it. So, you have 2 options in this first step. One is you can go all cool and use the most socialized platform to send the message. That is social media. Create a small poster or even a video with all the details and send it out. This will be far more exciting than the typical invitation card. But if you still want to hand out a card you can use option 2, which is DIY cards. Simple, easy and doesn't cost a thing.

Location

You can find plenty of outdoor, simple locations for a very cheap price. Get them and decorate them in your own. It will add a nice personalized touch to your event. If not you can even use your own space. You don't have to spend a single buck on that extra location.

Decoration and supplies
