

A great option for traveling with a limited amount of belongings is the Kanken backpack. It can be easily stored underneath an airplane seat and is roomy enough for all of your essential items. The design keeps your back straight, which is crucial for travel. In addition to being durable and comfortable, the Fjallraven Kanken backpack is also inexpensive. It costs about half the price of other travel backpacks.

The Kanken fox backpack features a large main compartment, two flat side pockets and an additional zipped front pocket. It does not have a lot of compartments, but it is easy to find what you need. The Kanken is lightweight and has an easy-to-use design, but it may not be the best option for those with bulky items.

small black backpack

Fjallraven's iconic Kanken backpack is now available in a smaller version. This compact backpack is made of durable polyvinyl and features a main zip compartment, front and side pockets, adjustable shoulder straps and dual top handles. The brand also supports the Arctic Fox Initiative.