The Fjallraven Kanken is a classic backpack designed to open the main compartment. It was developed in 1978 to help spare the backs of school kids. At the time, shoulder bags were the preferred option among younger age groups. Its simple design and functionality made it a popular option. The design is reminiscent of the school bags of earlier years. It is easy to clean, comfortable to wear, and holds all the items a school kid could possibly need.

Designed to eliminate back aches and relieve weight, the Fjallraven Kanken sling is made of durable, waterproof Vinylon F fabric that resists dirt and wetness. It features a large main compartment with an ample zip opening, two flat side pockets, and a zipped pocket on the front. It also comes with a PE foam seat cushion in the interior back pocket. Designed with a reflective logo, this backpack will keep your belongings safe even when the sun's rays are bright.
