

Let's take a look at our closets ...

- The problem is pollution from the textile industries. This problem is due to overconsumption of clothing. This leads to pollution of rivers and the release of toxic gas into the air. I suggest raising awareness of overconsumption by encouraging people to give their clothes a second life, to use resale applications or to put their clothes in thrift stores. For this, I organize a giant clothing barter! You can come with clothes that you no longer wear, to give them a second life and you can also redo your wardrobe! Some clothing chains will be present to publicize their brand which creates their product from used fabrics. Join us!
