

Poaching is destroying you !

Poaching is the illegal hunt of protected species. Today, poaching has killed 9 000 rhinoceros in a decade, more than 25 000 elephants and 1 000 000 pangolins (the most poached specie of the world by the way) are killed per year and it is affecting a lot of big cats.

Poaching is due to the rarity and the high value of the furs, scales and tusks of the animals. This practice has been destroying locals ecosystems for decades. This can be explained by the diminishing population of some predators and prays which creates a gap in the food chain.

To stop that, we have to create protected areas, reenforce the security of those areas with more rangers and break up the poaching networks.

If YOU want to take action, YOU must make this problem known by sharing it to your friends and on social medias and more importantly, write to your political representatives to make them act.

Come along and we will make a change !
