

NEWSPAPERS FRONTPAGES

1. Use the template on the board to label both frontpages
2. Use the help box at the bottom and define the type of newspapers they are.

THERE ARE DIFFERENT TYPES OF NEWSPAPERS.

Depending on the frequency of publication: Morning or evening newspapers, daily newspapers, weekly newspaper and Sunday supplements

Depending on the size and contents: Tabloids or broadsheets. Tabloids are small papers which contain lots of pictures and short, simple articles. Broadsheets on the contrary are large papers with serious reports and articles.

Finally, although newspapers are supposed to be objective, they are also usually connected to some political party or political ideals, so people consider some of them right wing or left wing newspapers.

WHAT IS FAKE NEWS?

Fake news is not just "false" information, is not just incorrect, but it is deliberately created in the tone and the language of traditional news media to deceive the reader. It is a malicious act. Today, this difference is disappearing with the massive use of social networks and their sharing tools. But this loss is also due to readers' growing mistrust towards mass media.
