

Bees are important, they are the world's first pollinators. They're in danger of dying more and more dead bees. Without bees, many other species are also at risk of extinction (flowers, fruit trees and many others). For their rescue there are different solutions such as eating more honey or planting flowers in our gardens. It is also necessary to fight against the asiatic frills that exterminate the niqs of bees. More people need to be informed about this disastrous situation.
