

The Stolen Generations

Between 1910–1970, many indigenous children were forcibly removed from their families [...]. They became known as the Stolen Generations. [...]

5 The removal of indigenous children from their families was part of the policy of Assimilation [...] based on the assumption of black inferiority and white superiority, which proposed that indigenous people should be allowed to “die out”
10 through a process of natural elimination [...].

Children taken from their parents were taught to reject their indigenous heritage. Their names were often changed, and they were forbidden to speak their traditional languages.
15 Some children were adopted by white families, and many were placed in institutions. [...]

When Kevin Rudd came to power in 2007, he promised to deliver a national apology to the Stolen Generations. This promise was 20 fulfilled on February 13, 2008.
