James Stenfield arrived in front of the castle and realised suddenly that he was all alone. At the beginning, it was a great news. After the accident he have been through , he was diagnosed blind. He told everybody that he wasn't blind but nobody believed him .His parents were too strict and over protective "Don't run after the cat James", "Don't stand up too late James", "give me your scissors James", "don't forget to take your pills James", enough ! Now, he was free. He just had to wait until his parents are sleeping, and leave by the windows, very easy. The young boy heard the screams of his parents and the police sirens, looking for him in all the city. But, he already knew that no one will approach the castle. Mr and Miss Stenfield ,your son got schizophrenia , say that stupid psychologist. But I am not crazy, I am just seeing what everybody doesn't. I'm tired of those silly people who doesn't understand me. When he entered into the castle, he didn't understand why everybody was so afraid of it. There were just no lights, but for him, it was a better place than living with his parents. During the past few days, every day feels the same. "JAMES WHERE ARE YOU ! MY SWEET CHILD !" "We need to find him, alone he could do the worst". But that day was different. The complete silence : no birds singing, no police sirens, nobody looking for him. The sky was very dark, even tho it was twelve PM. But suddenly,a surprise, the doorbell ring. Who would have the courage to come near to the famous abandoned castle ? James was worried, and even if he thought it was an hallucination, the doorbell rings again. Again, and again, and again. He decided to open the door, and realized that there were no one. The sky was back to the normal. He closed the door, and see a shadows behind him. He was persuaded that there was someone into the house. He turned around, and saw his parents, but they disappeared right after. Maybe he was just paranoiac or insane ? He come back to his bed, petrified. James heard footsteps in the stairs and then the door of his room open but the young boy didn't see anybody. The noises in his head wouldn't stop, and repeated all day long.

15 years later , his mom find James in his bed he seemed frighten to death.
And nobody ever knows the truth of this story .

CRAAK! John suddenly woke up in panic. He looked around him, worried and asked, feverish: "who's there?" But only the sound of the wind replied him. Brutally, he felt chills running through him. He stood up and noticed that the window was half-opened. A little bit scared because of the mystery of the scene, he went to close it, and saw that it was broken by the inside. Thunderstruck, he laughed at the absurdity.

A little bit confused, he stayed at the center of his room, anxious, and tried to remember the night before: he was convinced that he had locked the window and he was under the impression, that someone has entered in his house, he had a strange sensation in his lower back.

He heard again the cry of the wind, but this time it came from the kitchen. It seemed to him that the house was shaking. The irrationality of the situation petrified him. Nervous, he decided to go down stairs to see what was happening. John had a crazy feeling of being watched.

Another gust of wind and the window opened up in the same time of the TV. At this time, he started to shake. The TV passed the informations of the day: a mysterious serial killer has escaped from the jail. Immediately, John said "it's him! And now he is trying to kill me!". Unaware of his dementia he ran into the kitchen to take a knife. "It can't be just a human, it's impossible". Paralyzed, he saw a shadow growing to him, heard a last gust of the wind and...

The craziest love story :

Once upon a time, a couple who loved each other passionately. This couple used to watch the news every morning. On TV, several times a day, on BBC, all the country looks for a young woman who seems to have killed her boyfriend. This story has made a lot of talk in the country because it is very absurd, absolutely nobody knows who the famous murderer is. William, the Kamila's husband, was shocking, and thought it was illogical that you could kill someone you love.

One evening, while he was sleeping next to his wife, he felt her get up to go to the ground floor. Some time later, while he was trying to go back to sleep, he was awakened by the Kamila's voice, who seemed to be on the phone. He then decided to go near the stairs to spy on her. He hears his wife say :

« - I'm thinking of escaping, I don't want anyone to know. Prudence is the key to success »
Surprised, he decided to go back to bed, because he thinks it's crazy, and doesn't know how to react. Could it be his wife, the most wanted murderer in the country? IMPOSSIBLE for him

As the days go by, the husband was suspicious of his wife : she was distant and slipped away a lot to talk on the phone. She became lunacy.

One afternoon, he decided to go and confide his incertitudes to her.

" - Honey, what I'm about to tell you may sound strange but I have my doubts about the person you really are, are you involved in something serious?"

« - It's ridiculous what you say, how you can doubt me as I have your child in my womb !

"- Whaaaaaat ? You are pregnant, why you didn't tell me earlier you honestly think it's time to tell me. I want you to know that I'm sorry for accusing you like this, but last night I heard some ... never mind »

The man was full of shame for having judged his wife.

Because of the pregnancy and the heavy secret that she has to keep she became very quickly depressed. Her husband then, for weeks was keeping her company. She took advantage of this opportunity to abuse his kindness : he was so happy that their love was passionate, that he didn't mind. But it only lasted for a moment.

While William was sleeping he heard someone shouting, crying, banging against the walls. Terrified, he stayed in bed with frightened eyes, he pressed his sheet tightly against him, he was very, very afraid, he is worried and doesn't dare to move from his place.

The question he asked himself is who's there?

It was Kamila, she came into the room with a knife in her hand, she was crying, she was really scary. She threatened to stab William, she must do it out of love because when she falls in love with a man she must stab him to get his heart. Before she stabs him William asks her:

"Are you the cruel woman that all of America is looking for for murder?"

"Yes it's me and you'll be the next to die"

She walked towards him and stabbed him in the heart.

Ronald Walker lost his wife and grandson in a mysterious car accident, a few weeks ago. Since that day, he is so sad and he felt so alone that he became alcoholic and depressed. But one night, he was watching TV and he decided to sleep.

He was sleeping and was awoken in the middle of the night: by ~~egg~~ cries coming from below while he was supposed to be alone in his mansion. He was paralyzed for a moment but it didn't last long and he went down the stairs to see what is going on.

He went to the kitchen, the place where the tears came from. He slowly opens the kitchen's door, it was dark and he don't want to turn on the light to try to surprise a possible enemy.

Suddenly, the door slams and the windows opened vidently. It is was creepy and Ronald jumped.

He noticed the shadows of two people, a woman and a child who was holding hands.

He tried to see more clearly the shadows but they disappeared. It was insane and he thought that he had a hallucination.

Mr. Ronald could not sleep any more and could not stop thinking about this unbelievable moment.

Since that day he could not stop thinking that they were his grandson and his wife.

On the garden he have a mystery ghost to haunts the castle. The ghost arrive just the night and died ~~is~~ in the morning. The ghost have to scare all people living on the castle. His motto is to scare the people who lives in the castle away, the family who live in the castle think that the ghost that haunts the castle must be someone who belonged to the old royal family. He thinks it's the grandfather who is called Gaspard because before he was always in his leather armchair watching TV every night. The TV turns on by ~~every~~ itself and in the morning when we go to see the armchair we notice as if someone was sitting on it. He even had murders in this castle. There are people who hanged themselves, people who jumped from their windows and when they died had a deformed head, all black and it was not in relation to the fall but in relation to this haunted castle. Maybe they have haunted this castle and they are all ready to make the people who live there leave except that we will find what is happening strange in this haunted castle and make leave these ghosts which haunt this castle and this worse.

Story

It was a dark night. The old man, John, was laying on a chair, a cigar in his left hand, whiskey in his right. Thunder was loud that night, and so was the pouring rain, that came right after. John got up, walked towards his window, and looked at his garden. The lightning enlightened the shape of the trees and the little warehouse in the back of his garden. John liked this weather, because ~~that~~ it made him remembered him the lovely night with his wife, who was always frightened by the thunder. He went back to his chair, when suddenly he heard a wail from the warehouse. John, who was an ancient marine, took his musket, and went outside. He was scared, but excited too. Maybe it was the night he could be joining his wife... The wail stopped. The only noise outside was the thunder and the rain, hitting the roof of the house. The old man tried to open the door of the warehouse, holding his musket in his left hand. But it was closed. Indeed, he always locked the door because the young children from the neighborhood stole his tools. He waited outside the warehouse, thinking of what his next move was going to be. He took a deep breath and slowly looked left and right, checking the no one was actually in his garden with him. His head turned left, nothing. Turned right, though this time his eye had caught something. He thought, "wait, did I just see something?" It looked like a ghost, am I going crazy?" Actually, no, the old man wasn't insane or ridiculous, he indeed saw a ghost. He felt like a fool, "Did I drink too much?" he thought. John rushed to his house, shut his door, and hid in his room upstairs. The rain just stopped, and the man was crying in his bed, alone, thinking about his wife.

Everything started on a beautiful spring day, on Anais and Luca's wedding ~~hostility~~. The couple talk in the garden about their honeymoon. The day of the wedding, rain was announced. The alarms of the fiancés rang in their respective rooms. Suddenly, a scream resonates in the entire house. Everybody ran to the future husband's room and saw an empty room. They started to search for him everywhere. Sadly, nobody found him and the wedding is canceled. Anais was desperate and she can't believe what just happened. Every week she tried to look for her husband but then she became crazy because of the disappearance of the love of her life. Her family tried to reason with Anais but she avoided the subject. She was angry at the police because they give up but they think he just ran away. She isolated herself and became paranoid. She was afraid of everything.

One year later, Luca was announced as dead. Everyone tried to restart their life. A full moon evening, some noises came from the garden and woke up Anais. She thought she saw a shadow outside, so she went to see with prudence what is happening. Suddenly, she sees him. At first, she thought she was hallucinating, but when the shadow approaches her, Anais felt her soul leave her. When she found the face to open her eyes, she sees a familiar face, Luca. Luca was holding her cheeks while looking at her. Together, they spent the whole night, holding hands and looking at the sky. Everything was perfect. Anais woke up in her bed with a headache. She remembers what happened last night, she runs to the living room, only to find her mother-in-law and her mother, instead of her dear lover Luca.

Anais tells her mothers what she knows. Unlike how she expected them to react, they looked at her sadly. They told her, that she's turning insane, and that she should face the truth. Her husband is dead. Everything felt unreal.

However, Anais kept seeing her husband every night. Her family haven't seen her in 3 years, they decided to put her in an aisle.

Anais has been diagnosed with depression, even though she has been given medicine she wasn't getting better. In fact, she was getting worse and worse. The doctors didn't know how to help her. They gave up on her.

One day, a doctor came into Anais's room. He found her lifeless laying on the floor. On her desk, they found one letter. It was dedicated to her dead husband, Luca.

Unit 3 : Dead Tutefact

A widow was alone in her house, like each night she was wailing at her husband's alta. She had disappeared months ago and police hadn't found anything. One night, she went in her bedroom and she saw her husband's ghost on the ^{bed} looking at her with lunatic eyes. It was unbelievable, she lost her rationality and started screaming wildly. The ghost ~~stayed~~ ^{stood} up, he looked like a dead body, he ran to the woman and said: "Why did you do that?" She repeated this question with rage a long time before disappearing.

After this terrible event, the woman started to develop paranoia, she was traumatized by this hallucination but he never came back.

Two months after, she was arrested by the police for the murder of her husband and her family. She was diagnosed dementia and schizophrenia. She had an obsession with their hair so she kept them to make wigs. Finally, she became crazy and she killed herself in jail.

Once upon a time a lonely man was a resident of an asylum. He started to develop hallucinations, and few months later, he had been diagnosed with schizophrenia. Thus he had to be interned. He had rage to be locked down, so he was demonstrating animosity to the others residents.

During the months that followed the first day of his internment, he still had his fits of paranoia. The idea of staying in the asylum was absurd for him, because he thought he was not crazy.

He was beginning to feel spleen, because every day he saw the same scenery, ate the same food, cry alone in his room every night... He needed to feel alive.

A night, he decided to organize his escape out of the asylum. He ran in direction of the forest, but he never arrived.

This man, affected by strong emotional instability, met a little girl, pure and innocent. In a burst of fury, he leaped at her and attacked her in a wild manner.

Few weeks after this abominable and insane murder, he was more mad than ever. Nobody knows what happened to this poor girl that, except this miserable killer.

story of a

This was the [↓]stormy night, in which the wind whooshed, the old walls creaked and the shutters squeaked. An old man was awake because of the noises for hours and hours and hours. These sounds were scary, bizarre and nightmarish: tap tap creak creak creak clack. They seemed unreal.

However, due to this old age, he was so rational that he wasn't afraid at all. Seized by hunger, he decided to go downstairs to prepare a snack. He entered his large and old kitchen and made himself a hot chocolate. He sat on his rocking chair, in front of a big window. He was looking at the rain, the clouds, the trees lying down by the wind and the storm in his garden.

Suddenly, a lightning struck the sky and illuminated the manor. Looking more attentively at his garden, he saw something senseless and scary. A child silhouette. Because it was illogical, the old man thought he was hallucinating.

Even if he was scared, his seriousness led him to go and check if the child was okay. He was standing in the garden, under the lightning and the rain at the middle of the night. The old man took an umbrella, went out and walked cautiously towards the young intruder.

The child wasn't answering when the man was calling him. The latter was wondering if he wasn't stupid or insane. Then, a new lightning struck. The old man bent down and hid himself with his umbrella. However, when he raised his head, the child was missing. Dazed, he slowly returned to his old manor, with its old creaking walls.

This story was a irrational mystery , and he wondered if he was not getting demented with age . He put down his umbrella , went into the kitchen , washed his mug of hot chocolate and went back to bed . The wind continued to blow , the shutters squeaked and the old men fell asleep again .

One Upon a time, there was a couple who loved each other immensely, when, one day an argument broke out. When the husband came back to his home after work he saw a letter laying on the table and notices that a chair is missing. He saw the chair far away from the table, he decides to go to the room where the chair was. And it was there, that he saw the lifeless body of his wife which was hanged after the argument. She explained in her letter that she no longer had the desire to live and that she would prefer to die and she also asked him to be buried in the garden because she doesn't want to be buried in a cemetery. It was from that moment that his life changed. This man who was so happy became depressed. One day something weird happened to him... He heard wails in his garden. Then he decides to go out and see... He saw a man blind in one eye and ^abluish skin. The man who was introduced into the garden was wails at the place where the wife of the owner of the house had been buried. The owner stepped out and asked him what he was doing here. The man doesn't answer to him. The owner decides to invite him to the house. They had a long discussion about feelings and other things.

This owner asked him if he was sick because he never seen a man with bluish skin and looking so moose. The man doesn't answer and disappeared. The owner of the house was troubled by this sudden disappearance. He never saw the man again. One day he went out and asked to his neighbors if they know this man, but all the people said to him that he was crazy, that he had lost his mind and that because this man doesn't exist. At this precise moment, the owner understood that since the death of his wife, he became paranoid, depressed and so empty, because every day of his life he was thinking of his dead wife, that he had invented a ^{encountering with} friend. After understanding this, and after being shocked by this. He decided to go join his wife and he suicide himself the day of halloween. Groupe 13:

It's the story of an old man who lived peacefully with his family in a big mansion or so it was at first... After an accident where the old man lost the sight of his left eye, the old man began to see things, terrifying things, that other people couldn't see. The following days, the old man began to talk or shout to someone or something in the house that his family members couldn't see at all. His family couldn't bear to see him descending into madness, so, with hope, they sent him to a famous asylum which was supervised by nurses. Alas, his condition after his arrival began to worsen. During his stay at the asylum, when sun shined in the sky, every single of his needs were taken care of by the nurses. But when the night fell, the old man's mental state became very unstable. He began to wake up in the middle of the night and scream his lungs out, his shouts alerted the nurses who, each night, immediately came to his room. When they arrived the old man wasn't screaming anymore, he was on the ground, hugging his knees, crying while blabbering some nonsensical words about some horrifying creatures staring at him in the room. He was in total panic and anxiety and was considered by the nurses as an insane person.

The 11th day's morning, when the nurse came to bring him his lunch, she saw him staring intently at the window, she also noticed that he was injured, it seemed like he had used his nails to write something on his arm but the nurse couldn't recognize which language he used. To prevent him from hurting himself, the nurses decided to bound his arms together with leather straps. But tying him up only made him filled with rage and made him enter a state of emotional instability. He began wriggling around and trashing the furniture in his room. The nurses decided to remove all the furniture in his room but his bed to make it harder for him to injure himself.

One day, his family came to visit him but it wasn't a party of pleasure for them because the old man kept throwing curses and saying to them to leave him alone, they also noticed that he had become very bony and emaciated. The thing they didn't know was that he wasn't cursing or talking to them but to something that he saw with them...

The night following their visit was an abnormal one compared to the previous nights, the wind was howling through the corridors and rooms making the curtains flutter. There wasn't any screams this time, only the sound of the wind. This pseudo-silence didn't make the asylum look more peaceful compared to the other nights but it made it more strange and scary. All of the residents of the asylum including the nurses woke up and were feeling dread and alarm for some unknown reason. They then began to see and hear wonderful, terrifying, beautiful, horrifying, impossible things. They also saw shadows slithering in their rooms from the corner of their, now terrified, eyes or moving figures through their windows and mirrors ; And heard voices, whose genders couldn't be identified, coming from behind them, behind the walls, behind their ears, whispering unimaginable and incomprehensible secrets and truths.

When the day came they woke up in their bed, they didn't notice anything different in their rooms. The nurses gathered for their usual Morning Meeting, the first topic that came was one on the previous night that they all lived, they found a consensus, an explicable explication for all of these inexplicable happenings. They said that the last night's happenings were caused because they all ate something with hallucinogen property and that they suffered from hallucinosis. When they made their usual round of all the residents' room they found the old man's room completely covered by weird symbols from the ceiling to the ground. The symbols were written with a black liquid that gave off a red hue. The old man wasn't in his room, they searched high and low for him but they didn't find anything. He had disappeared and nobody ever heard of him again.
