

ACROMANTULA

XXXXXX

Extremely dangerous

The Acromantula is a monstrous eight-eyed spider coming from Borneo. It lives in dense jungle and it is capable of human speech.

It is covered with thick black hair and its pincers produce a clicking sound when it is excited or angry.

The Acromantula is carnivorous and it likes eating large prey in particular.

The female is bigger than the male and it can lay up to one hundred eggs at a time.

BOWTRUCKLE

XX

Friendly

The Bowtruckle is a tree-guardian creature that lives in the west of England, southern Germany and certain Scandinavian forests. It is very small, it has two brown eyes and it is made of bark and twigs.

The Bowtruckle, which eats insects, is a peaceable and very shy creature. It has also very long sharp fingers.

sharp = pointed, cutting

MURTLAP

XXX

Not very dangerous

The Murtlap is a marine beast that lives on the coast of Britain and looks like a rat. It has a sea anemone on its back, red eyes and small rodent teeth.

Wizards use its tentacles to make healing potions and they are also edible. But careful! Don't eat too much of them or your ear hair will turn purple.

The Murtlap likes eating crustaceans but also ... human feet.

heal = cure, remedy

NIFFLER

XXX

Not very dangerous

The Niffler is an adorable animal with a long snout and a black fluffy fur. It looks like a platypus and it lives in burrows. The Niffler loves shiny objects, such as jewels or coins, and it has a pouch on its belly that can contain many things. That's why they are very good at locating treasure. However, Nifflers can be destructive and should not be kept domestically.

belly = stomach
